ESSAY

Locally the sticks and bricks cost of building a single modest housing unit runs between $300,000 - $400,000, land cost excluded. This typically covers the development & construction cost of an apartment unit or a small-detached single-family unit. Enter San Diego County's plan to come into compliance with State Law. SB 743 requires that new housing projects be analyzed based on the number of car trips it will generate. The average distance travelled is the key factor. Vehicle Miles Travelled, or VMT is the new parlance. Its proposed implementation could well mean the end of housing development in the County. Please provide an essay that discusses this topic and its potential impact to the Building Industry.
